F. P. Smiley Received the Largest Indorsement of Any Candidate on the County Ticket.

At noon today the official count of the vote at the recent election was completed by County Clerk Lee, Chairman Paul, and Supervisor McEvoy, beyond showing that F. P. Smiley, candidate for register of deeds, led the county ticket, with Jesus Earle a close second and that the social democrats elected their candidates for coroner and county surveyor. It reveals nothing startling. Doherty had a larger vote than Crownhart in the race for attorney general. The democrats, who marshaled over 1,000 ballots for their gubernatorial candidate, failed to support their candidates for county office who ran independent by one-fifth of that vote.

KANSAS DOCTOR ON TRIAL FOR MURDERDr. G. H. Buck Has Hearing at Greensburg on Charge of Poisoning His Wife.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Greensburg, Kan., Nov. 14.—Dr. C. H. Buck, a wealthy resident of this place, was given a preliminary hearing today on the charge of having murdered his wife, Mrs. Lila Buck, by poisoning. The physician has created a great sensation in this section and the outcome of the trial is awaited with keen interest.

The complaining witness in the case is W. B. Kinslow, father of the dead woman. So far the facts of the charges have not been made public.

Mrs. Buck has been a life-long resident of Greensburg and was socially prominent. Dr. Buck, to whom she was married about a year ago, was also well thought of, though he was not as well known, having resided here less than two years. The married life of the couple appeared happy.

Mrs. Buck's death occurred about four weeks ago after an illness of two days. Physicians who were called in were unable to decide definitely upon the nature of her illness. Two weeks after her death formal complaint was made against Dr. Buck charging him with murder.

WERE DEFEATED IN SENSATIONAL GAME

Janesville Cleven Lost to Whitewater 6 to 3, Saturday—Editor Sustained Painful Injury.

In the last three minutes of play the Whitewater football eleven snatched victory from the local team by scoring a touchdown and kicking goal on the Whitewater gridiron Saturday afternoon. Until that time the game was Janesville's with the score of 3 to 0, but the final rush of the opponents took the locals by surprise and Whitewater's sensational victory with the score of 6 to 3 was the result.

From the blowing of the referee's whistle at the kick-off a close struggle was assured. Very evenly matched as to size and skill, the teams fought fiercely back and forth with the advantage on neither side. No score was made until the third quarter, when H. Ryan, the Janesville fullback, cleverly succeeded in putting the ball squarely between the goal posts in place kick from the thirty-five yard line. To the Janesville supporters, of whom there were many in the large crowd that witnessed the game, victory seemed assured for the locals, in the last quarter the battle continued and Whitewater was held valiantly up to the last three minutes when Kelly succeeded in breaking away and scoring the touchdown which won the game for Whitewater.

It was in the last quarter that the only accident occurred to mar the brilliancy of the game. Ray Edler, left halfback of the Janesville team and one of the star players, suffered a broken collar bone which resulted in weakening the team in that position, possibly allowing Whitewater to gain their score. Janesville had punted and Whitewater fumbled. Edler got the ball on a bound and ran forty yards, when he was tackled and jumped upon by two of the Whitewater players with the resulting injury to his collar bone. Edler arrived home with the rest of the players and is doing nicely at present. This is the second injury that Edler has sustained this season, having recently broken one of the bones in his hand.

Janesville's line-up was also weakened by the absence of two of the regular men, Brown and Kerst. Otherwise the line-up was: Kelly, re.; Connell, le.; Fatur, rt.; Paulkurst, lt.; Mott, rg.; Putah, lg.; Cannon, c.; Hayes, ed.; Edler, lb.; H. Ryan, fb.; Huzen, rb.

DRUNKEN HOBBES CAUSE CONDUCTORS MUCH TROUBLE

Vagrants Pester the Freight Train Crews at Watertown and Cause Train Delays.

Conductors on the Northern Wisconsin division of the Northwestern road, running into this city, complain of the trouble which they are experiencing with just at this time of the year in being pestered with hoboes, who attempt to ride the trains. Many of the wanderers are in a semi-intoxicated condition when they attempt to jump on the cars, and are in great danger on some of the fast-moving freight trains. It keeps the crew busy attending to their train and to have to watch the vagrants, causes a great deal of annoyance. One place in particular where the crews are bothered is at the penstock at Watertown, where the trains stop for water. While the train is held there, the men open the doors of empty cars and crawl inside. When the trainmen look over the train they discover the intruders and oftentimes the train is delayed while they stop to throw the unwelcome passengers off. Sometimes those being ejected from the cars object to the treatment given them and a free-for-all fist fight, with the trainmen lined up on one side and the vagrants on the other, follows.

STOPPED SHORT

Taking Tonics, and Built up on Right Food.

The mistake is frequently made of trying to build up a worn-out nervous system on so-called tonics—drugs.

New material from which to rebuild wasted nerve cells is what should be supplied, and this can be obtained only from proper food.

"Two years ago I found myself on the verge of a complete nervous collapse, due to overwork and study, and to illness in the family," writes a Wisconsin young mother.

"My friends became alarmed because I grew pale and thin and could not sleep nights. I took various tonics prescribed by physicians, but their effects wore off shortly after I stopped taking them. My food did not seem to nourish me and I gained no flesh nor blood.

"Reading of Grape-Nuts, I determined to stop the tonics and see what a change of diet would do. I ate Grape-Nuts four times a day, with cream and dried milk also, went to bed early after eating a dish of Grape-Nuts.

"In about two weeks I was sleeping soundly. In a short time gained 20 pounds in weight and felt like a different woman. My little daughter whom I was obliged to keep out of school last spring on account of chronic ear-ache has changed from a thin, pale, nervous child to a rosy, healthy girl and has gone back to school this fall.

"Grape-Nuts and dried milk were the only agents used to accomplish the happy results."

WOMAN INTOXICATED; WAS CARRIED TO JAIL

Della Hanley Raised the Roof in Chas. Thornblom's Apartments Last Evening—Other Drunks in Court.

Officers Brown and Morrisey responded to a call to some flats near the city hall shortly before 12 o'clock last evening and found a woman named Della Hanley so drunk that they had to carry her to the lock-up. She was in the apartments of a man named Charles Thornblom, who claimed that he drove a hack in Milwaukee but who has had no visible employment nor means of support since he drifted into Janesville about a month ago. Thornblom declared in漫游 court this morning that he intended to marry Mrs. Hanley on the 15th. The pair were unable to pay fines and costs aggregating $5 and $1 respectively but in response to a telephone message Oscar Hand, who runs a second hand store and rents rooms on North Main street, came to the rescue and saved them from jail terms.

Eddie Ryan, who is reported to have been shipping people and trying to "start something" in some of the saloons Saturday night, was unable to pay a fine and costs amounting to $1 but escaped a jail sentence by taking the pledge for one year before Father James McGinnity.

Harry Smith, who was before the court on Saturday, paid part of a fine and costs amounting to $1 and arranged to meet the balance.

Dan McKinnon could not pay a fine and costs amounting to $2 and was given a "de pass."

Barney McDonald, who was supposed to be dying when picked up near the Northwestern freight depot some days ago and sent to the county house, was given one hour to start for La Crosse.

William Tobin, who claimed that he lost $25.75 somewhere in his drunken travels Saturday night, was given a chance to go and look for the lost cash under a suspended sentence.

Frank O'Gorman, who has been working at Tunnel City, was fined $4 and costs with the alternative of eight days in the jail but sentence was suspended.

KICKERS' KOLUM.

November 14, 1910.

Editor of the Gazette!

The following communications have been received at the offices of the Industrial and Commercial club, and I hope that they will be of interest to your readers I respectfully submit them to you.

"This county had experience with tax ferrets a few years ago. At that time I was in favor of such a proceeding, but the results of the tax ferret business has caused me to change my mind.

The tax ferrets discover money of widows and orphans, and produce a hardship in that respect. They do not catch the professional tax dodger. He invests his money in lands and corporations outside the state. Their work has had a tendency in this country to drive capital out of the state. Men with money since then have been less interested in investing in home industries.

The tax ferrets breed turmoil and trouble and this country would have been better off had we never had tax ferrets."

An ex-Mayor of Davenport, Iowa.

The assessor of the same city says: "After a trial of the tax ferret plan of collecting taxes the people of this city with almost unanimous accord condemn the system as being unfair, unsatisfactory and highly objectionable; that work of the assessor is disregarded and no real gain is made except that hardships are imposed on the weak and helpless while the road culprits are usual escape."

"Capital is made timid and the tendency to invest at home is lost to the extent that home enterprises suffer."

"Dissatisfaction and discontent in the community are ripe so long as the plan is on and our experience is that it is highly objectionable and not even satisfactory financially."

"This is from a city clerk in a western city."

"I hereby certify that a company of tax ferrets made application to the city council to collect the delinquent taxes in the city of D—, and that said application was rejected on account of the past experiences proving so unsatisfactory to all of the people."

VII.—Seasonable Health Hints

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

It has been estimated that our sun glows with the somewhat feverish "temperature" of about 10,000 degrees F. and radiates light in the amount of 1,575,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 candle power. This is "going some," even for Old Sol, but there are younger suns, like Sirius, that glow with an even higher temperature, not to mention those vast orbs in the uttermost depths of space whose fierce light, traveling 8,000,000 times faster than an express train, requires thousands of years to make the journey to our earth.

Considering these facts, one must be impressed with the exceedingly narrow physical limits within which life exists on this planet. A few degrees more or less of heat or cold and the phenomena we call life would cease, and a blankness of which we can form no real conception would follow. In endeavoring to form a mental picture of such a world we are reminded of

CHILDREN SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED TO PADDLE AROUND WITH HEADS EXPOSED TO THE SUN.

Huxley's reasons for standing midway between the idealist and materialist, unable to picture either world in which "there" was "no 'mind'" to mirror its conditions or a mind existing without an external world from which it could receive impressions.

Keep the Mind Busy.

But are these good hot weather problems? Isn't the intense "heat seller" a more appropriate subject for the "dog days"? Not necessarily. Anything that will really make you think in hot weather and keep the mind from dwelling on a misfortune which cannot be helped and which comes regularly every season is of value in preventing the physical ill due to high temperature. Luring babies and those who are unfortunate enough to be compelled to overexert themselves physically in the broiling heat, most of the illness and physical depression that afflict people during the heated term are due to vapid mind wandering and to drink.

People who have something worth while to think about are not wasting much time in abusing the weather. This does not mean that it is wise to work at high pressure, either physically or mentally, during the extreme hot spells. On the contrary, there should be slowing down of exertion and an avoidance of excitement. Hot occupation will lighten the mental strain and depression which are such important factors in causing heat prostration.

Evil Influence of Drink.

I hesitate to state that alcohol taken freely lowers the body temperature, lest some one seize this as an excuse for drinking in the heated term. It is true, however, that alcohol reduces the body temperature and is therefore a dangerous drink in hot weather. But it does not follow that alcohol is indicated in hot weather. Alcohol is an anesthetic and depressant, lessening the bodily resistance to disease and so affecting the nervous system that it is peculiarly vulnerable to heat strokes or thermic fever as well as to grippe, pneumonia and other cold weather maladies.

During the heated term it is wise to keep out of noisy meetings and disputes. Heat induces a peculiarly sensitive and irritable condition, which is aptly described by the phrase "carrying a chip on one's shoulder."

Dressing For the Weather.

Some persons are guided by the calendar instead of the thermometer in the matter of clothing. During moderate winter weather they are overdressed, and in extreme hot weather they continue to wear clothing adapted to temperate summer heat.

The wisest plan is to dress especially for the weather. We should have extra light clothing for torrid weather, just as we should have extra heavy outer clothing for blizzard weather.

Lightweight and light colored clothing is most healthful when the heat and humidity are excessive. The extreme conservatism of Americans in the matter of dress and a fear of looking conspicuous have deterred many people in the northern section of the country from adopting white duck, linen cranch or white flannel suits during the extreme summer weather.

It is not uncommon to see dark colored, thick clothing, more appropriate for spring wear, worn with dumb and patient persistency right through the sizzling heat of midsummer. Even an occasional stiffly starched shirt bosom may be noticed.

Loose, light colored, porous clothing will exert a marvelous influence for comfort. The money wasted in futile attempts to quench thirst would be better expended on a linen suit and linen mesh underwear.

On the other hand, neck mufflers and heavy furs worn during moderate winter weather simply invite colds, grip and pneumonia by rendering the wearer unduly dependent on such garments. Furthermore, during moderate weather heavy furs are a burden and induce fatigue and depression. Common sense should be exercised in such matters and due allowance made for individual peculiarities of constitution. Old people and invalids may require extra protection against cold, but the average individual should endeavor to become adapted to the wearing of medium weight clothing for ordinary winter weather and take extra precautions when "blizzard" weather is to be faced.

Bathing and the Weather.

The daily morning shower or plunge will brace the nervous system for the ordeal of a hot day; likewise it will give poise to the circulation and develop a resistance to cold weather poxes of grip, bronchitis, etc. A tepid bath in the evening will often prove refreshing and soothing. A cold bath at night may prove exciting rather than cooling and restful.

Children should not be allowed to paddle around in the water with heads exposed to the sun. A sea dip is good for them, but they should not be permitted to play around the water unless their tender little brains are well protected from the sun's rays. Cool feet and hot head make a bad combination.

Restful Sleep Necessary.

Restful sleep is very necessary to restore the nervous system exhausted by prolonged hot weather. Late supper and indiscretions in eating and drinking are often responsible for disturbed sleep. Care in this regard is especially necessary when the heat and humidity are extreme.

A tepid bath before retiring will often prove efficient in promoting restful sleep.

Diet and the Weather.

It is not wise to starve oneself in hot weather. But there is little risk of this happening in prosperous America. The fact that the poor of India are starved for fats and proteins is no proof that any considerable number of people in this country are underfed.

On the contrary, the average American family probably eats too much meat of the time and especially during the heated term.

If much exercise is taken a fairly generous diet will be required to supply energy and repair tissue waste. If a pretty quiet physical existence is led a light diet is the rational course.

Green vegetables should have the preference over meat. Milk is not a good hot weather food for an adult and should be withdrawn from the child or infant at the first sign of bowel trouble. Soda fountain drinks are better than beer or gin fizz, but water is the best thirst quencher.

In the cold weather the proportion of fat and starches, which are heat and energy producers, may be increased.

Milk is a more valuable food in cold weather than in hot weather and is less likely to be contaminated by germs in winter season. It is not an ideal food for the average adult, however, who should be able to secure sufficient fat from the elements of a mixed diet. It should be borne in mind that there is a close relationship between constipation and intestinal toxemia and susceptibility to colds.

Congestion of the nasal passages seems to be directly caused in many cases by the so called "bilious" state.

This is simply a toxic condition due to overeating or faulty eating. Rich, indigestible foods, and especially after dinner suppers, are frequently responsible for attacks of grip and other winter troubles.

Setting her teeth, Mrs. Beach carried the suit to a cleaning and dyeing establishment and told her troubles.

"I'll!" said the cleaning and dyeing man. "Of course, madam, we could fade that out for you a perfect white—nothing is impossible to us with our superior methods—but why not dye it? A pretty blue, for instance? Blue is very stylish this summer and—"

"All right," said Mrs. Beach, catching desperation at the suggestion.

"Dye it blue. Maybe that would be better than having it white, because it won't get soiled so easily."

"It will be two-fifty," said the man blandly. "Thank you!"

The suit really looked quite nice when it came home. Mrs. Beach showed it to her husband in a little triumph. "You see, it was good to start with," she told him. "It's just like another new suit this year—and all for $13!"

By September 1 Mrs. Beach had had the suit "dipped" twice again and cleaned once. Even though it took her last pony who would not admit to Henry Beach that the suit was a hoodie. To keep it looking nice became a mania with her.

The other day she took a pen and began figuring and discovered that besides the original cost of the suit she had spent exactly $14.50 in dyes and cleaning and dipping. And then there was the mental strain besides.

Mrs. Beach has given the suit away to her laundry and at present is negotiating for the making of a new broadcloth suit at $95. She thinks it will be cheaper in the end.

They Stayed at Home.

A Chicago banker planned to take his family to Europe, but the son, eight years old, refused to leave his dog behind. As no dog could be taken, no son could be taken. As no son could be taken, the mother wouldn't go, the father decided to stay at home. That dog ought to be proud to know that he runs the whole family. Some folks would have left him with the cook and let him howl away.

From His Pa's Side.

"She doesn't know where the baby got his bad temper from."

"That's strange. Most young mothers can place that sort of responsibility in a Jiffy."

POWERFUL ALLIANCE FORMED.
Editors and Druggists of Nation Join Hands in Movement to Combat Medicine Trust With Practical Methods.
Much interest is being manifested throughout the country over an organization which has recently been formed, its avowed purpose being to fight the potent medicine trust. It is a matter of common knowledge that for many years these gigantic corporations have been victimizing the people with nostrums of every conceivable kind, compounded with little regard for their contents or for the public health. They have been made to sell, and in glaring advertisements those concerns have told the people that their preparations would prove the true panacea for every ill.
Just such methods as this have finally attracted the attention of Congress and the state legislatures, and the result has been a nation-wide movement for legislation for pure foods, pure medicines, etc. But this legislation has not struck at the root of the matter. These big medicine concerns, which have grown fabulously rich at the expense of the people, through charging them enormous prices for the cheapest kind of medicines, are the concerns which the editors and druggists are after.
The movement includes the organization of a mutual association of editors and druggists who manufacture and sell throughout the country thoroughly reliable medicines and nostrums in every day use, preparations that are sold at an honest value, have honest merit, and have behind them the recommendation and guarantee of the druggists, editors and physicians of the nation. Competent pharmacists and dispensing chemists of long experience and recognized ability have been at work upon the various preparations for several years; hundreds of formulas have been gathered from druggists and chemists in all parts of the country, and the very best and most dependable of each have finally been tested by expert chemists and adopted by the association. These, known as the Merit Preparations, will be widely advertised, in order that the people may be thoroughly posted as to their relative merits in comparison with the products of the trust.

PRESIDENT TAFT.

President Taft, whose summer home is at Beverly, with headquarters in Washington, is no longer overshadowed, and as time advances the fact will be recognized that he is the President and not a figurehead.

The task which he assumed when elected to the office of chief executive, was not a holiday task. His predecessor had blazed a trail so far in advance that reducing it to a highway was far from an easy undertaking, but his work was mapped out and he went at it in an orderly way.

Unlike the man with the "big stick," he did not attempt to be the law on all propositions, and the contrast was so striking that a restive constituency was not slow to comment and criticize. He was expected to settle the tariff business, off-hand, and because he finally endorsed the bill to be secured through the congress, its only legitimate channel, a clamor of disapproval greeted him, gathering in volume as time advanced.

Then the idol of the people returned from his jungle hunt, and the President disappeared from public view as completely as though he had been isolated in a post house. The Chicago Tribune, and papers of that class, were so full of Roosevelt, that a flood of letters was necessary to remind them that the President's summer home was Beverly, and not Oyster Bay.

Popularity is a tickle thing, and while Colonel Roosevelt still has a host of admirers throughout the country, the day has passed when his word "law." Every candidate that he supported in New York or elsewhere, was defeated in the late election.

People, you, just at present is "up in the air." Some of it was recently bestowed upon the democratic party, not through any love of the organization, but because it was regarded as the less of two evils.

When the mists have cleared away, and the atmosphere clarifies, the most prominent figure on the horizon will be President William Howard Taft, the same level-headed, broad-minded, high-hearted man as of yore, and as scattered public sentiment rallies to his support many people will wonder why this big American statesman has been so long overlooked.

The congress which convenes next month will be a republican congress, and while the session expires by limitation the first of March next, there will be ample time to right some of the wrongs which have been committed.

Unless an extra session is called the democratic House will not organize until December, 1911. This means a year for business, untrammelled by campaign disturbances. It also means a year for the scattered ranks of the republican party to get together and rally to the support of the man at the White House.

If the republican party is to regain prestige;

the first work to be accomplished is in work of harmony, and no time should be lost in getting the contending faction together.

To this important work President Taft will bend every energy, and he is entitled to the loyal support of every republican. While he is the President of all the people, he was elected by the party so long in power, and the members of this party, without regard to factional differences, owe him loyal support.

AS WALL STREET SEES IT.

The elections are now out of the way. The fact that one political party was severely defeated and that another secured a much greater victory than was expected should have only a temporary effect upon the security markets.

The plain lessons of the election are that the country desires real tariff revision and is tired of regulation in its various forms. Judging by the types of men who have been successful in the present election, the country is politically sane and prefers leaders of proved intelligence, character and sobriety to those who stir up discontent and profusion.

"It must now be accepted that the tariff will be a leading issue when the new congress convenes. No immediate revision, however, is likely, because the new members do not take their seats until a year hence and the approaching session of congress will be a short one, largely confined to routine affairs.

Another impediment to prompt revision will be party rivalry as to methods of revision, each side trying to secure credit for obeying the mandate of the people. Under these conditions there is little likelihood of any final legislation until 1912. The interval will, of course, be filled with more or less agitation that may restrain business and enterprise in any way affected by tariff schedules. The protective sentiment of the country is so strong that radical changes seem improbable.

Another effect of the election will be to insure a more rational attitude towards corporations and railroads. We are likely to see a less hostile attitude on the part of the administration to the latter, and now that the campaign is over the security markets will once more be governed by natural conditions, politics having been eliminated for the time being at least.

This expression of opinion is from Henry Clews, the old New York banker and financier. His judgment as to the lessons of the campaign, just closed, is sound, and the fact is gathering recognition that the people have rebuked both wings of the republican party.

The increased cost of living is charged directly to the tariff, and whether right or wrong the men in command are held responsible.

Democratic victories in New York and several other states where insurrection was dominant, were equally significant, and as time advances it will be discovered that radicalism does not meet with public approval.

If a disposition is shown to correct tariff inequalities the people will wait patiently for intelligent revision, but the day has passed when they will longer tolerate "horse play" on the part of public servants. The vote expresses dissatisfaction, as well as a desire for rest.

Eighty-five boys at West Point will lose their Christmas holiday vacation, because they treated one of the officers to a thirty day "silence," obeying commands, but refusing to speak to him. The ominous silence which had settled over Oyster Bay since last Tuesday is becoming oppressive, and people are becoming anxious, as Mike did over the prolonged silence of Pat, his partner, at the bottom of the well. To the oft-repeated question, "Pat, are you kit?" finally came back the consoling answer, "No, Mike, but badly hurted."

Democrats are jubilant over the fact that turkeys have declined two cents per pound, in the New York market, since election, and this just before Thanksgiving too. Now if the party will get after the American hog, and see what can be done about 40 cent bacon there will be rejoicing all along the line. Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

CUT OUT YOUR DOUBTING.

I know a man who has literally smashed his way to success by never taking counsel of his fears.

He is not bright beyond most men, but everything he does seems to prosper.

And the reason for it is to be found in his splendid optimism. The element of doubt never enters into his calculations. He has no fear of the ultimate outcome.

Yet sometimes he fails.

When there is a falling down in some of his plans he makes no little fuss about it that people think he is always successful. He scarcely admits a failure, even to himself.

He eliminates doubt.

Instead of formulating and fighting the follies of fear he formulates his hopes. By cutting out the fear and worry that distract many men he is able to launch all his strength in the direction of accomplishment.

He is strong—plus.

So I say beware the pessimism of doubt. If you will let it, doubt will harass you day and night and may prevent your ultimate success.

If you think you are going to succeed you have fought half your battle. If you believe in your plan and in yourself the odds are largely in your favor; if you do not believe in yourself and doubt the outcome of your plans the odds are largely against you.

Say to the fears of the future, "Get thee behind me, Satan!"

Because fear is no part of your heritance. You have acquired that. You are a son of God, not a son of the devil. God has endowed you for success. The devil would tempt you to form the habit of doubt.

Get doubt out of your system.

It no more belongs there than does a "bad cold." Eliminate it.

Many a man fails because of his worries lest he may fail. Do you see? Dread of what may happen is imaginary. Doubt of the future is conjured up in one's fancy. It does not exist.

A man's fears!

The power of the human will is something almost divine. It is all but omnipotent. The trouble is men are afraid to pull the throttle wide open and use every ounce of power. They hesitate; they figure; they doubt. In the words of the old hymn, these timorous mortals—

Linger slivering on the brink
And fear to launch away.

Indications point to a very busy and perhaps animated session of the common council this evening. In the first place Mayor Carle is expected to definitely announce his refusal to sign the contract with Workman & Higgs, tax experts, which the aldermen, by a vote of 6 to 2, decided to enter upon at the last session. Some of the City Fathers who were in favor of the proposition at that time have experienced a change of heart. At least one of these is indignant over Workman & Higgs' threatening attitude with regard to a contract which has not yet been signed. It is probable that the council will vote to reconsider its previous action and lay the tax-free proposition on the table for an indefinite period.

Main Street Paving.

Against the brick paving between the street railway tracks on South Main street to which objection was raised at the last session, T. S. Nolan, attorney for the Janeville Tracton Co., will submit a communication calling attention to the fact that all such work was done subject to the approval of the city engineer and street assessment committee. The work involved the laying of 955 1/2 square yards between the rails at a contract price of $1,873 and on a certificate issued by the city engineer, a payment of $1,000 was made to the contractor. The street assessment committee is evidently satisfied with the work as it now stands and will recommend its acceptance and ask for authority to issue the certificates for such as have elected to pay their assessments at once. To cover the balance, a resolution authorizing the issue of some 33 special six per cent street improvement bonds to the amount of $3,281.55 will be offered. The street assessment committee will also ask leave to amend its report of Oct. 31 on the amount of tax to be raised for sewer purposes in District 5 by substituting one mill on each dollar valuation for one-quarter of a mill.

Looking Over the Wires.

Members of the fire and water committee, the chief of the fire department, and officials of the Wisconsin and Rock County Telephone companies have been holding a heart to heart conference today regarding the failure of the phone, telegraph, and electric companies, to raise their wires to forty feet in the vicinity of the tall buildings in the business district, as required by ordinance, and there will doubtless be some interesting report from that.

Stone Crusher Closed.

The stone crushing plant ceased operations for the season on Saturday. Material is in readiness to meet all needs until next spring and the machinery has been put in shape for the winter. Supt. W. E. Dulin will report tonight that the total output for the season was 7,094 1/2 yards. It was sold for 60 cents a yard to contractors and probably cost the city about the same as last year—70 cents a yard.

Various Matters.

Chief Appleyard's report for the police department will show 82 arrests during the month of October for the following offenses: attempted suicide, 1; insanity, 1; prostitution, 1; disorderly conduct, 1; begging, 2; and drunkenness, 82. Forty-seven were taken to court and 42 discharged. The arrests are credited as follows: Appleby, 12; Brown, 8; Fanning, 13; Moroney, 11; Champion, 5; Sam Brown, 10; Dorn, 17; Palmer, 2; and Dulton, 2.

Health Commissioner J. B. Richards will ask that $78 be put on the tax lists to cover the cost of cleaning 5 vaults in 1910.

The board of education will ask the council to authorize Mayor Carle to borrow $5,500 and place the same to the credit of the school fund to meet immediate demands.

Orders will be drawn to pay 35 inspectors and clerks for their services on registration and election days. William Hughes will be voted $228.80 for 14 and a fraction tons of hay at $16 a ton and E. J. Howland, $14 for the use of his building as an election and registration booth.

Stephens may be taken to construct the bridges which the people by their votes have approved. There will doubtless be some reference to the proposed new motorcar for the fire department and various other matters of general interest, including the lunch wagon and candy stand structures alleged to have been built in violation of the fire ordinance.

CHRISTMAS IDEAS FOR THE TABLE

SET OF FLOWER HOLDERS FOR THE TABLE.

Red is the Christmas color, and the more vivid a table is the more appropriate. Formerly the tone was given by holly and red ribbon, but lately the polynettin has superseded everything.

If possible have a huge mass of the natural flowers in the middle of the table. These look lovely when arranged in one of the miniature peach baskets to be had at the florist's, gilded if desired. The effect is heightened by having a bunch of polynettin at each plate.

If one cannot afford the real flowers or but a few of them they can be made from paper so well as to escape detection, especially if mixed with a few natural blossoms.

The candle shades should be paper polynettin, edged with red braid fringe. The trees may be served in polynettin cups on standards representing stem and leaves.

For more elaborate effects garlands of paper polynettin can be bought and fastened over the windows or from the chandelier to corners of the room. It can also be draped on tablecloth.

For a place card use a polynettin blossom, with a tiny doll head set in the cup of flowers. Should one not wish to use the polynettin plants as favors the small red sleds filled with candy

THE SANTA CLAUS TABLE.
Trimmed with holly hangs from the chandelier with strings of tiny cutines touching to the sides of the table.

A White Christmas Dinner.
If you have had a red Christmas dinner so long that it will substitute a snow scene in green and silver. Put a long oval mirror in center of table, surround it with miniature evergreens and sprinkle the surface of the mirror with white snow to represent ice. On the mirrored ponds have Santa Claus on a sled drawn by reindeer.

Dress him in white covered with silver, and on his back have a pack filled with small favors. Tie each gift with thin silver cord and run it to the various covers with a silvered place card representing a snow scene attached to the other end.

Have a similar mirror masked in evergreens at each corner, and on it stand a silver candle with shade of white paper sprinkled with diamond dust and painted in mistletoe.

Use green and white cakes and candies in silver baskets or have mounds of snowballs made of cotton batting and thinned or the bought glass filled with nuts and candy. There could be a mound before each plate.

Important Improvements

Are Automobile Prices Coming Down?

Yes and No. Because some side street dealer in shoddy clothing "takes the public into his confidence" and plasters his windows with gaudy placards boldly announcing the closing out of $9.98 suits, at $8.99, would you immediately conclude that high class tailoring was going to follow?

No one with any knowledge at all of real conditions takes seriously the claim of cheap or material or cheaper labor unless the car is to be made of material of a cheaper grade and by labor of a cheaper class.

The honestly made car, the car that is made of as good material, and by as skilled labor, costs more to produce today than it did a year ago.

The manufacturer who is building an honest car, and selling it at an honest price has no room for a reduction.

Even now there is an actual shortage in cars of repute. Manufacturers who have produced cars which have "made good" have orders booked ahead for months, while some of such makers have deposits covering every car they can build for 1911.

There are discrediting buyers, and will be for years to come, sufficient to absorb the output of all the truly good cars that will be made.

INCREASED POWER

Cylinder bore increased from $4\frac{1}{4}$ to $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches. This, with more efficient carburetor, (Schebler) which is water-jacketed, effects a material increase in power. Piston stroke, $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

The four cylinders are cast singly, with copper jackets applied, retaining the exclusive Cadillac features throughout.

INCREASED COMFORT

Wheel base increased from 110 to 116 inches, making the car ride easier than ever.

IMPROVED APPEARANCE

Double drop frame, $2\frac{1}{2}$ inch drop, which makes car set lower, and this with the larger hood and more roomy tonneau greatly improves the appearance.

LARGE RADIATOR

The radiator is slightly larger, hence has greater cooling capacity. This is notwithstanding the fact that the Cadillac was never deficient in that respect.

TIMKEN AXLE

Full floating type, Timken roller bearing rear axle. This is the same axle as used on a number of America's highest priced cars.

COUNT TOLSTOI IS LOCATED

COUNT IS DISCOVERED IN MONASTERY AFTER RENOUNCING THE WORLD.

WIFE TRIES TO END LIFE

Novelist's Disappearance and Descent of the Countess and Their Nine Children Is Attributed by Many to His Falling Mentality.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 14.—In the old monastery of Koselak, in the province of Kaluga, Count Leo Tolstol, the social reformer and novelist, who has renounced the world and who disappeared several days ago, was located by a searching party.

Simultaneously with the finding of the count, his wife, overcome by the desertion of her husband, is reported to have twice attempted suicide by drowning herself through a hole in the ice.

She is in a state of collapse, and it is feared she will not recover.

Seen on Way to His Refuge.

Before it was definitely settled that the count had entered the monastery he was seen on the estate of the Abrukosoffs, wealthy manufacturers in the Mount Semyon district of Tula province.

The flight of the count has made a painful impression. That he should desire to spend the evening of his days in solitude surprises no one acquainted with his career, but that he should deliberately desert the mother of his nine children is difficult of belief even in the light of his well-known eccentricities of character.

The suggestion of a falling mentality is accepted by many in explanation of the count's sudden action.

Note Left by Novelist.

In a letter left for his wife the count said:

"I cannot continue longer to live surrounded by luxury, and, like many other old men, I retire from the world to complete my life in solitude. I ask that you do not seek my place of sojourn and that you do not come to it if it is discovered. I beg forgiveness for the grief I may cause you."

The novelist's reference to living amid luxurious surroundings is significant of his state of mind, as he has long lived the life of a peasant. While his family occupied a substantial mansion on the Yasenya Pollana estate, Tolstol abode in a peasant's hut, partaking only of the simple peasant's food and wearing the peasant's costume, a rough blouse, wide trousers tucked into high cowhide boots, a leather belt and fur cap. He has not always conformed to this humble mode of life, but it has been his choice.

In his writings Tolstol has condemned suicide as immoral and irrational and as indicating a perverted view of the significance of life.

Making the Best of Life.

Comparatively few men know how to live. The man who has no system in his life, who is regulated by no definite principle and proposes to himself no great and honorable end is not likely to show a satisfactory result.

Reflect on the vast possibilities of your life—of honor, usefulness and happiness. Is your life as intelligent, as happy, as useful as you might have made it?

One Thing Certain.

The tourist from Chicago usually makes himself seen and heard. One lady of such tendencies announced to a surprised audience in a London boarding house that her husband had written to say that he was going to buy an automobile. "I don't know whether he'll go in for a towering-car or a running-around," said the volatile lady. "But one thing is certain, we'll have our own garbage."

Area of Alaska.

It is estimated that the total forest and woodland area of Alaska is approximately 100,000,000 acres, or about 27 per cent. of the land area of the territory. Of those about 20,000,000 acres may possibly bear timber of sufficient size and density to be used as saw timber, while the other 80,000,000 acres is woodland which bears some saw timber, but mostly only firewood.

DAILY DIET HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist.

FOOD VALUE OF POTATOES.

The potato contains all the elements needed for brain and body-building, though not as good a staple food as unboiled cereal bread, slowly cooked, and made light and porous with yeast and allowed to dry before eating. The best way to cook potatoes is by baking; fried in fat they are particularly indigestible. The potato is rich in the mineral elements of food, but deficient in fat and nitrogen. With buttermilk it forms the diet of large part of the Irish peasantry, accounting to a great extent, for their beautiful complexion and the quick wit which is dependent upon a due supply in the nervous system of potassium, phosphorus, and other mineral elements. The potato contains nothing, however, which is not better supplied in nuts or in whole wheat bread.

NEW HAMPSHIRE SHOWS GAINS.

Population of State Increases 18,934 in Ten Years.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The population of the state of New Hampshire is 430,572, according to the statistics compiled for the thirteenth census. This is an increase of 16,984, or 4.0 per cent., over 411,588 in 1900.

Florida's population, shown by the thirteenth census, under the existing basis of apportionment, entitles the state to a fourth representative in congress, the figures being 761,139.

CONLEY HOLDS ATTELL EVEN.

Ten Thousand People See Grueling Fight at New Orleans.

New Orleans, Nov. 14.—Carrying the fight to his rival throughout 15 grueling rounds, Frankie Conley fought Abu Attell to a draw in the best battle that New Orleans has seen in years. The bout took place in the West Side club. Ten thousand persons paid admission. While the decision of Dave Barry was accepted without protest by the crowd, yet experts of the game declare Conley should have had a decision. He forced Attell to his boat throughout the battle.

SENATOR CLAY OF GEORGIA DIES OF HEART DISEASE

Expires Suddenly While Chatting with Wife and Son—Been Ill Long Time.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 14.—Alexander Stephens Clay, United States senator from Georgia, died suddenly at the Roberton sanitarium after an extended illness.

Although Senator Clay was desperately ill his death was not expected. Mrs. Clay and her son, Horace, were at the bedside and the senator was chatting with them about returning to his home at Marietta. Suddenly he gasped and in a moment was dead. The cause of death is given as dilation of the heart.

Senator Clay has been in ill health for a long time, the physicians saying that he suffered from neuro indigestion. It is generally understood, however, that his real ailment was cancer of the stomach.

Senator Clay was in his fifty-ninth year and was a self-made man, having worked his way through college. He served several terms in the Georgia legislature and in 1896 was chosen senator to succeed Gen. John H. Gordon. He has held the seat ever since without opposition.

It is understood that Governor Brown will name either ex-Governor Joseph M. Terrell or Col. Charles H. Pendleton, editor of the Macon Telegraph, to succeed Senator Clay.

SITUATION MAY YET BECOME CRITICAL

Mexico City, Nov. 14.—The recent outbreaks against America and American investments in Mexico City is of sufficient moment to warrant the continuing interest of foreign minister Enrique Creel in the affair. The outbreaks in themselves would have less significance except for the fact that the American flag was trampled in the dust and this fact is liable to lead to international complications.

Refuse Information.

"Washington," Nov. 14.—The state department refuses to give out any information regarding the recent outbreaks against America in Mexico City, but it is known that the situation is receiving serious consideration and careful investigation.

Upper left, Juarez colony, one of the principal residence sections of Mexico City, sometimes called "the American colony." In this district many outbreaks against Americans have occurred. Upper left circle, President Diaz of Mexico. Upper right, Enrique Creel, minister of foreign relations in Mexico, to whom complaint has been made and with whom the Washington state department will take up negotiations. Enrique Creel is well known in the United States, having formerly been ambassador from Mexico. Lower left, Secretary of State Knox, who has been appealed to for instructions by Ambassador Wilson, and who will have the knotty problem in charge. Lower right, Ambassador Henry L. Wilson, United States representative at Mexico, who was himself attacked and whose son also was attacked in the recent outbreak against Americans. Ambassador Wilson has telegraphed his own report to the state department at Washington and is awaiting instructions.

The Major's Tip.

When Maj. Banks was the best known figure around the race tracks of Cincinnati and the middle west, he was extremely generous in tipping off his friends to "sure winners." One man who enjoys his confidence and plays the horses according to the major's advice, lost all his money and finally succeeded in reducing himself to the point where he had to sell out his grocery business.

Memory Well-Trained.

Men played cards so incessantly in early Victorian days that it is not surprising that many were able to give singular evidences of their skill. For instance, Mr. Pratt could at the conclusion of each rubber correctly call over the order of the cards as they had fallen as well as the person playing them.

A Foxy Suggestion.

A Strong Quarrel.

"Are you sure those eggs are fresh?" asked the woman, eyeing them suspiciously. "Yes, ma'am," replied the grocer, with emphasis; "I guarantee those eggs. If any of them aren't good, I'll make 'em good!"—Lippincott's.

GOVERNORS TO HAVE MOST IMPORTANT MEETING EVER HELD.

State house at Frankfort, Ky., where the governors will be entertained and where they will hold their sessions. Upper right, Governor Wilson of Kentucky, who will act as host to the visiting governors. Below, two of the principal speakers, Governor Port of New Jersey at left and Governor Gillette of California. Frankfort, Ky.—On Tuesday, November 29, in the new Kentucky state capital building at Frankfort, will begin the most important meeting of governors of the states of the Union ever held. Fully 35 governors will be present at the governors' conference and President Taft and Theodore Roosevelt have been invited and are expected to be present.

During the meeting many matters of importance to the states will come up, which will tend ever hereafter to heighten the various states.

It's planned now to perfect a permanent organization of the house of governors in the meeting in Kentucky. The plan is to have each state contribute its part to the support of the permanent organization, providing for a secretary and several modestants and keep each governor in touch with what is being done in each state. Governor Wilson of Kentucky, who is the chairman of the conference, says that as it now stands a governor of any state goes into office green and it takes him a couple of years to learn the ropes and know what ought to be recommended to the legislature. But he said if the governors had a permanent organization, with a good secretary, each new governor could have at his disposal reports showing the advanced thoughts in each state, what is being done by each governor and each legislature, the nature of recommendations in messages and party platforms and in a few days where he could get information that would be of the greatest value to him and to his state.

This plan will be broached at the meeting in November and it is probable that the permanent organization will be perfected at the coming session. This is only one of the many important questions that will be discussed by the governors. They have all written that if they come they want to work all the time and play only at night, when receptions can be given for them.

The program for the meeting at Frankfort for the first day and in Louisville the second day, has not been completed and will not be given out for several weeks. It is planned to have only the shortest and simplest exercises on the opening day. The address of welcome on behalf of the state will be delivered by Governor Wilson. Mayor James H. Polk will deliver the address of welcome on behalf of the city of Frankfort and there will be a response by one of the governors. All this will take only a few minutes as each speech will be brief. The governors will then get down to work and will be in session all day. It is proposed to have a buffet luncheon served in the capitol for the governors by the women of Frankfort instead of letting them scatter about over the city at the hotels and private homes where they will be staying. In the evening Governor Wilson and Mrs. Wilson will have a large reception, which will be an invitation affair, at the mansion. The governors will go to Louisville on the following morning to continue their business sessions. In Louisville the women of the party will be lavishly entertained, but the men will stick to their work.

FEASTS THAT KILL

Horace Fletcher, Arch-Apostle of Hypermastication, Talks.

Details Dire Effects of Christmas Dinners and Thanksgiving Turkeys—Finds That Poor Are Good Eaters.

Chicago.—Christmas and Thanksgiving turkey, cranberry sauce and the long list of viands that go with those staple articles have been responsible for more loss of life, energy and ability to the people than all the great battles of history.

Thus does Horace Fletcher, arch-apostle of hypermastication—meaning, in plain English, the world's foremost advocate of the theory of thoroughly chewing food—denounce overeating, especially the extent to which the practice is indulged in on national holidays.

Not only that, but the Sunday dinner is more directly blamable for "blue Monday" than is the proverbial "night before" in the opinion of the man who made chewing an art.

Clad in pale blue, striped pajamas, with his feet bare, Mr. Fletcher faced a small gate blowing into the open window of his room at the Congress hotel the other day with enviable impunity. True, it was not snowing, but the sun had barely left Michigan City on its way to Emporia, Kan., and the atmosphere was more or less frigid. The teeth of the interviewee chattered.

Mr. Fletcher, who is as radical an advocate of "fresh air" as he is of scientific mastication, was immune from the breeze. He was pink, and smiling.

Although sixty-one years old and snow-blinded, he is an athlete in superb condition. He attributes this to his system of living and of chewing food. He weighs 170 pounds and has eaten fewer breakfasts in the last twenty years than any body in Clark street.

As a result of publicity given to his "right-living" propaganda, Mr. Fletcher says the words "Fletcherism," "Fletcherite," and "Fletcherite" have been recognized by lexicographers and will be "real words" in the dictionaries.

"It means to digest thoroughly," said the soxagenarian. "A manuscript on morals may be 'Fletcherized.'"

Mr. Fletcher was loath to believe that the "superman" of ages to come would be able to secure food and derive his nourishment from plain air.

"I would hate to think of that coming to pass," he said. Then he confessed he enjoyed what he did eat. "Still, it might be done if a man would get on the windward side of a soup kitchen, and take deep, regular breaths," he added.

The secret of correct living and right living is possession by a greater percentage of nonpersons than by "malefactors of great wealth," Mr. Fletcher said. He seemed anxious to correct an impression that he was a votary of the midnight rabbit debauch.

"Rarebits are all right if a person wants them and if properly cooked and manicured," he said, "but I take them perhaps two or three times a year."

Mr. Fletcher is firm in his belief that "economic eating" will revolutionize society.

FROZEN EGGS FROM ORIENT

Sixty Thousand Dozen of Them Reach Quaker City—Carried Half Way Around World.

Philadelphia.—Sixty thousand dozen frozen oriental eggs which had been carried half way around the world in the refrigerating plants of different steamship lines, were landed from the American liner Marlon the other day and placed in cold storage plants here to await sale.

The duty on them is five cents a dozen. Notwithstanding the many miles which the eggs have been carried, the temperature maintained about them has never been higher than 14 degrees Fahrenheit. They were stowed away in 44-pound tin cans, and arrived in good condition.

The shipment was hurried from the Marlon's side in wagons driven rapidly, and the eggs were stowed away in cold storage warehouses after undergoing only a slight change in temperature.

Paris.—The latest French submarine to be launched, the Charles Brun, is said to be fitted with a new form of boiler about which great secrecy is being observed. Submarines generally use steam when traveling on the surface and electricity for under water work. According to one account the Charles Brun is to be propelled by a steam engine only, it being fitted with a boiler which utilizes under the water heat stored while the submarine is on the surface.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON.

NOT LONG ago a woman wrote me a little story of a mother who had her little boy with her in a millinery shop. While she was looking at the new models, the boy went from hat to hat, examining them. Being of an investigating turn of mind, he was anxious to see what everything was made of, and on each hat would squeeze some ornament between his fingers, saying, "That's lace" or "that's wax" or "that's cloth," as the demolition proved.

One of the clerks, catching sight of the destruction that was going on, hove down upon the youngster with a gentle "Oh, little boy, please, you mustn't!" Whereupon the mother, instead of repriming the boy and apologizing for his actions, turned upon the clerk laughingly announcing "He may play with all the hats he likes, and spoil every one in the shop if he wishes. His grandfather owns the store."

My correspondent winds up her tale by inquiring if I approve of the woman mother's conduct.

Seems to me that's very analogous to inquiring if I have any common sense at all. That mother had the pleasure of discomfiting the saloonwoman and bringing about a very dramatic dénouement to the little incident. I wonder if that repaid her for the harmful lesson she taught her boy.

Instead of self restraint and respect for the rights of others, she was impressing upon him his right to absolute self gratification.

Some day maybe that son will run away and marry a chorus girl, or disgrace his family by stealing a few hundred thousands from some bank. And his mother will wring her hands and bawl her face. Will she ever realize, I wonder, the part she had in making that fate?

Whenever I see children whose mothers allow and encourage them to treat their "inferiors"—shopkeepers, servants, etc.—in a domineering way, I don't know which to be the more sorry for, the mothers or the children. Just the other day I saw a little girl, the pink-and-white-golden little creature you ever saw, exquisite as a French doll, fresh and sweet looking as a May morning, sitting on the box of a carriage in front of a shop, evidently waiting for the coachman on the box of a carriage in front of a shop, evidently waiting for the coachman who shopped within. I stopped to admire her, and then I stopped admiring her. For Lady Goldilocks decided that she wanted to get out and superciliously ordered the coachman to lift her down. In going so he disarranged her coat, and the drooping down this wretched little imitator of elders that didn't deserve to be imitated gave him, was a caution. I can tell you my admiration shrivelled up like an autumn leaf at the touch of the houndstooth flounce.

It seems to me an axiom of child training that children should treat servants with thorough respect and courtesy, and that failure to do so should be punished as unfailingly as any other fault.

I have several times heard of servants who left good positions simply because they could not stand the freedom with which children were allowed to interfere with their work, and the insolence they were allowed to show toward them.

That above bad mistresses and worse mothers. I am sorry for the servants who are obliged to leave good positions for this reason, sorry for the mothers who are piling up trouble for themselves, but most sorry of all for the children whose characters these mothers are helping to spoil.

Isn't it?

TEMPTATION OF THE COUNTRY.

By MARY RUSSELL.

That man who fears that he may do wrong, turns to brave temptation because he knows he is weak, is armed at one point at least. It is a confession of a certain weakness, but also it argues an understanding of self which will go for towards saving him from failure. If he will—but be strong in his determination: "to keep away from temptation."

A country boy recently speaking of the city, said:

"There are a lot of things here to tempt a fellow to go wrong!" I asked.

"Why do you say that?" he questioned, apparently amazed that I did not agree with him.

Now I do not agree with that statement. I do not think the city has any greater or more terrible pitfalls for the feet of man than the country. In fact I believe to the right-minded, clean-minded boy the city is full of safeguards, so I said:

"What were your temptations in the country? Did not you and the other boys talk low and yodel talk often when you met? Did not you speak lightly of the girls you knew? Was there not a constant stream of gossip which touched the characters of the sweetest and purest girls, and held them up to ridicule, if they have to believe in the love-making of the men they particularly admired? Did they not money? Were there no boys among you who drank? Beer, perhaps whisky sometimes? Maybe you did none of these things, but, among the few boys in your neighborhood, there were doubtless some who did all of them. You were thrown with men older than yourself, who were adepts in all the vicious and low practices which are the curse of man and the sorrow of woman. All these temptations you had there as well as here."

one of them, through carelessness, fell in. His friend, after great exertion, brought him to land, but it was a long

No sooner had he opened his eyes, however, than the other asked him: "Tell me, did you see a lot of

BE TAKEN AS SLAYERMcCoy of Bethany University Held Responsible for Half Back Monk's Death.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 14.—Coroner Rogers issued a warrant for the arrest of Thomas McCoy of Canton, O., the Bethany university player whose rough play is alleged to have caused the death of Half Back Randolph Monk of the University of West Virginia team. The warrant charges murder. The warrant was issued following a hearing of the statement of the physicians who performed the autopsy on Monk and the testimony of Homer W. Young of Pittsburgh, Pa., who was the umpire.

The physician testified that death was due to a blood clot on the brain and could not have been due to any former injury.

Mr. Young said the ball was on Bethany's thirty yard line, when Monk started down the field for a turnover."He was not near the player with the ball," Mr. Young said. "Munk was met by McCoy, who ran toward Munk as they both were running down the field. Ten yards behind the scrummage line, when Munk was in front, McCoy struck him in the back of the head with his fist. Munk fell and McCoy fell also, but quickly regained his feet, looked at Munk and started off for a field."Umpire Young said that as the blow appeared to him as clearly intentional he immediately put McCoy out of the game.McCoy was reported to have gone

IN 1910 APPORTIONMENTCOUNTY BOARD COMMITTEE MAKES ESTIMATES OF FIGURES.

BIG INCREASE IN VALUATION

County Has Grown in Value $1,112,744
In the Past Twelve Months According to the Reports Made.If the work of the county board of supervisors is any criterion of the actual work done by the local assessors neither Janesville nor Rock county place the services of any tax ferrets to discover property that has escaped taxation or valuation at thirty-three and a third per cent. The figures compiled by the special committee on apportionment of the county board show that during the last twelve months the valuation of Rock county property has increased $1,112,744.
Their report which appears below, will be presented to the county when they meet on Tuesday and will doubtless be approved.Janesville still leads the cities with $11,070,000. In making its estimates the committee has compared the assessed valuation, the market value placed upon property by County Assessor Starr, the 80 per cent valuation and the 1910 apportionment, which is the basis for taxation. The per cent shows the share of each town or city in the county tax. It will be noticed that the city of Ulster shows the greatest gain in value for the year with $492,165 against $360,402 for Janesville. Milton township shows the greatest gain in the towns with Plymouth a close second. The figures of the committee are as follows:

largest social events of the present season were given on Saturday and Sunday afternoon with Mrs. A. E. Bling-

Bostwick as hostesses at the Christian church parsonage house. The hall was most tastefully decorated with southern silk and chrysanthemums and on Saturday an elaborate menu was served to the hundred invited guests followed by bridge. This afternoon the decorations were the same and a most delicious five o'clock tea was served, followed by cards.With the approach of the winter season there are many social happenings of importance. On Thursday of this week Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Trough entertained at a dinner dance at their home, 110 St. Lawrence avenue. The list of guests are divided between a sixty-third dinner and those invited at sixty-third for the dance and midnight supper, the third floor of the Trough

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Gazette, Nov. 14, 1870.—Jotting.—Some stolen goods were recently found beneath the steps of All Soul's church. The authorities have taken steps toward finding their owner and are engaged in foraging out the thief. To insure peace of mind to the congregation we will state that none of its members are suspected.

We understand the project of paying the debt of the Congregational Church Society by weekly alms, subscription has been adopted with great success and gives promise of the payment of the entire church indebtedness at an early day.

The editor of the Times remarks that the "inwards" of that paper particularly annoy us. A mistake. They never troubled us in the least. On the contrary, the "phantom inside" is the most readable part of the paper since election.

NEWS FROM THE SUBURBS

EVANSVILLE.

Evansville, Nov. 14.—Miss Allen Elizabeth Williams, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Williams, passed away Saturday evening at the home of her parents on Second street, aged 14 years, 6 months and 22 days. She has been frail since a child of seven years, when she had whooping cough very hard, and this left her lungs in a weakened condition. The following winter she had pneumonia and typhoid fever and this illness kept her in bed over five months, fourteen weeks of which time she was unable to take her food or turn in bed without assistance. The next winter she was taken to Oskaloosa for her health and in that sunny climate regained considerable strength and since then has enjoyed fairly good health until four weeks ago when she was taken with a hemorrhage of the lungs. Her parents were making preparation to return to Oskaloosa with her for the winter, but on Friday she suffered another severe hemorrhage and died, three that day. When she had the first one she realized that the end was very near and asked that her brother be sent for. She was cheerful up to the last and at eleven fifteen Saturday night she died of another hemorrhage. Beside her parents there are six brothers, all older, left to mourn for the loss of a loving daughter and sister and they all have the sympathy of the entire community in their great bereavement. The funeral will be held Wednesday, the time depending upon the arrival of the brothers.

C. M. Davis, general agent for the International Harvester Co., had the second finger of the right hand taken off at the first joint while repairing a corn sheller last Thursday near Black Earth. Dr. Jackson of Madison dressed the injured finger and Mr. Davis returned to his home here Saturday. He probably will not be able to start out on the road again for a couple of weeks.

The first meeting of the Tourist club will be held Tuesday evening, Nov. 16, at the home of Miss Pearl Van Vleck. The year's program will be a continuation of the study of modern dramatists.

INDIGESTION, SOURNESS, DYSPEPSIA
AND ALL STOMACH MISERY GOES

Your 'Out-of-Order' Stomach Feels Fine in Five Minutes After Taking a Little Diapospin.

There would not be a case of indigestion here if readers who are subject to stomach trouble knew the tremendous anti-ferment and digestive virtue contained in Diapospin. This harmless preparation will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort, and relieve the sour stomach in five minutes, besides overcomimg all foul, nauseous odors from the breath.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on each 50-cent case of Diapospin, then you will readily understand why this promptly cures Indigestion and removes such symptoms as Heartburn, a feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, Boiling of Gas and Eructations of undigested food, water brash, Nausea, Headache, Bloating and many other bad symptoms; and besides you will not need laxatives to keep your stomach, liver and intestines clean and fresh.

If your Stomach is sour and full of gas, or your food doesn't digest, and your meals don't seem to fit, why not get a 50-cent case from your druggist and make life worth living? Absolute relief from Stomach misery and perfect digestion of anything you eat is sure to follow five minutes after, and besides, one case is sufficient to cure a whole family of such trouble.

Surely, a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Diapospin, which will always either at daytime or during night, relieve your stomach misery and digest your meals, is about as handy and valuable a thing as you could have in the house.

Suicide Among Laborers.

An East London coroner says many suicides on whom he had held inquests were described as general laborers. He thought that every one ought to be brought up to trade. In Germany everybody, from the highest to the lowest, was bound to know a trade. A juror said: "Thousands of men with trades are as badly off as laborers." The coroner: "I am told that with a trade everyone can get work in the colonies." Juror: "Well, there is no work hereabouts." Another Juror: "I am a mason, and I have had only six weeks' work this year."

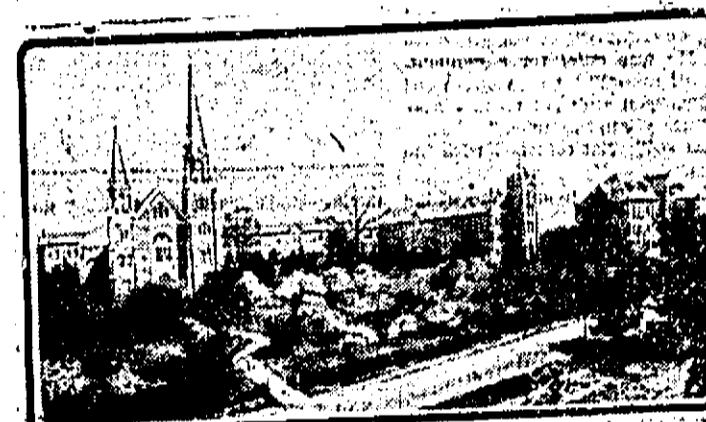

HOPE ALWAYS THE BEST FOOD

What the Doctor Suggests, Not What He Gives, Has Greatest Effect on Patient.

"Doctor," said one of those self-centered ladies who are always extracting opinions gratis from the medical profession, "what do you consider the best food as a constituency?"

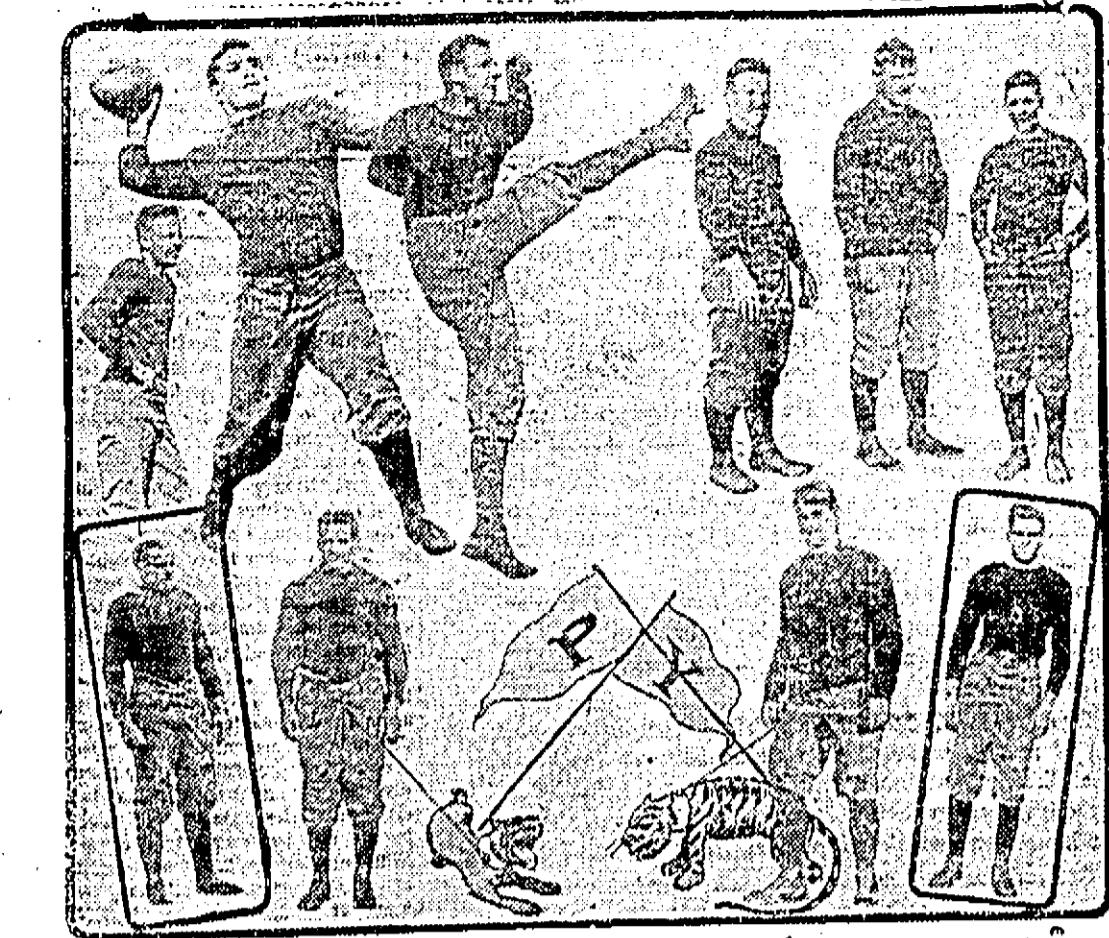

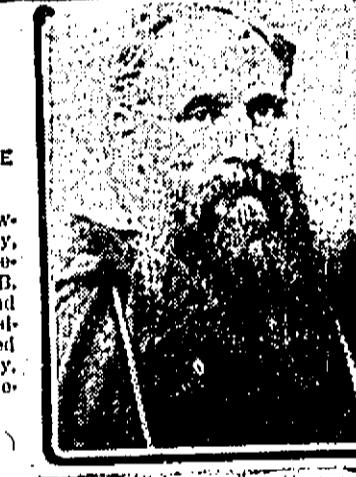

"Hope, madam," returned the doctor, promptly, "at all times and in all places. Not a senseless optimism, but a self-respecting hope. Heaven and Nature intended it to be the elixir panacea of the race." The table dined not smile, and the doctor, having secured a few minutes' immunity, declined "wholesome" prefaces, and fell upon a robust breakfast of bacon and eggs, waffles and hot rolls. The lady regarded him wistfully, for the doctor ate with appetizing gusto. A stomach long trained on other people's theories concerning edibles was not to be trifled with, so she was fain to satisfy herself upon a tasteless cereal, and then nibbled a little dry toast and sipped a weak substitute for coffee. But the doctor is nothing if not humane, so, between his sips, he looked across at her pleasantly and began: "I said that because what doctor actually does or gives is infinitely less in its effect than what he suggests. This is a truth old as Hippocrates and Galen, though, perhaps, only in this age are we beginning definitely and intelligently to utilize it. Happiness is the substance and aim of life and living, and hope is nine teeths, say of happiness; its greatest factor; therefore beware of unconsciously dispensing with hope." —Harper's Weekly.
